Manager comment

VNL's unaudited NAV as at 31 December 2012 was USD516.3 million or USD1.07 per share. This represents a 3.6 percent decline from a net asset value per share of USD1.11 as at its close of business on 30 September 2012. During the month, VNL's share price declined 4.9 percent to USD0.39 as at 31 December 2012, from USD0.41 on 30 November 2012. During December, VNL did not repurchase any shares under the ongoing share buyback programme, however to date, a total of 17.0 million shares have been bought back. This represents 3.39 percent of the Company's 499,967,622 ordinary shares in issue prior to the beginning of the share buyback programme.

Despite improving macroeconomic conditions, banks remain extremely cautious in lending for real estate projects due to outstanding non performing loans (NPLs) and loan books already heavily exposed to the real estate market. As a result, the residential sector remains muted with limited demand and home prices falling, specifically in the condominium market. However, it does appear that negative sentiment is beginning to weaken and in some projects we believe the pricing has reached a bottom. In December, VNL signed 15 sales contracts, nearly double that of November and more than September and October. This was a result of typical year-end activity and a marketing road show to Nha Trang to source local buyers for the My Gia project where pricing has been stable for the past few months, as well as buyers for the Azura apartment project in Danang.

In December, the Prime Minister's office engaged with both Ho Chi Minh City and Hanoi officials to discuss measures to revive the country's real estate market. The government is determined to bring the real estate market back while concurrently maintaining macroeconomic stability concurrently. Nevertheless, we expect these initiatives will take some time to show results.

VNL project revaluations were undertaken for the period ending 31 December 2012 with a total of eight projects appraised by international valuation consultants. These revaluations include: Nam Phat in Da Nang, VinaSquare, Long Truong, Saigon Design Centre, and The Garland in Ho Chi Minh City, Binh Duong Township in Binh Duong province, Aqua City and Phu Hoi City in Dong Nai province. Additionally, a further ten projects were externally reappraised by valuation consultants as part of a six month update for the interim period. This resulted in nearly all projects being revised downward, primarily due to the continued softness in the real estate market over the past quarter, which led to a USD0.04 reduction in the Company's NAV per share as at 31 December 2012.

Macroeconomic update

According to the General Statistic Office (GSO), Vietnam's gross domestic product increased 5.4 percent in the final quarter of 2012, bringing the full year growth to 5.0 percent. This represents the weakest annual economic expansion since 1999 and came as a result of the State Bank of Vietnam's (SBV) focus on keeping inflation at manageable levels compared to previous years. However there is a sign the economy is improving as inventory levels increased just 20 percent in the fourth quarter, far lower than a peak of 35 percent in the second quarter.

The consumer price index increased 0.27 percent in December, month-on-month, bringing the full year figure to 6.8 percent, a drastic change from an inflation rate of 18.1 percent recorded in 2011. During the month, prices for food and foodstuffs remained unchanged, while prices for transportation increased 0.3 percent.

Credit growth finished the year at 6.5 percent, much lower than the SBV's initial target of 15 – 17 percent. Conversely, as a result of high deposit rates total deposits increased by 20.3 percent in 2012 and as such, the VND strengthened versus the USD. Credit growth should improve in 2013 if interest rate caps continue to fall. In late December, Vietnam's central bank cut policy and deposit rate caps by 1 percent. As a result the refinancing rate and deposit rate cap fell to 9 percent and 8 percent respectively.

Fixed income

The primary bond market extended its rally into December with a total of USD1.3 billion worth of government and government sponsored bonds issued, an 84.4 percent increase from November 2012. Credit growth in Vietnam finished at 6.5 percent for the year, which resulted in abundant liquidity for the banking system, aiding in the strength of the overall bond market. As a result, bond yields declined between 5 to 14bps on 2-year and 5-year State Treasury bonds, which accounted for 54 percent of total issues in December.

The secondary market also rallied in December with USD1.3 billion worth of government and government sponsored bonds exchanging hands. Nearly 75 percent of all bonds activity were in short to medium term bonds (3 years and below). According to data compiled by Bloomberg, yields declined between 5 to 15bps for these short and medium term bonds.
